Low-wage workers leading the way to poverty's end

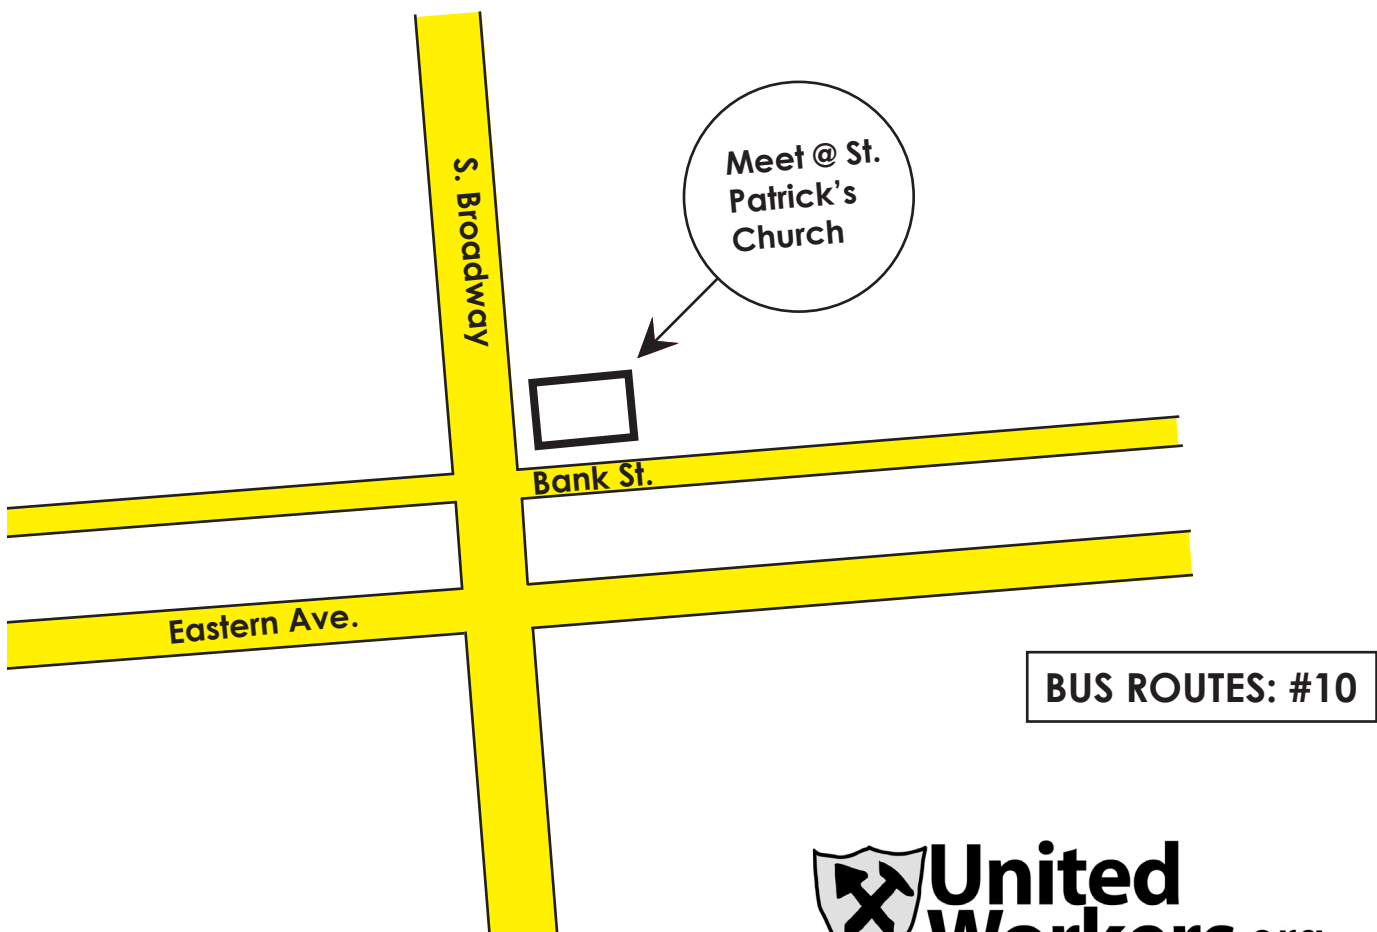

Next Day Staffing & Camden Yards: Worst of the Worst

Camden Yards is a publicly-owned sweatshop that uses public dollars to help private companies profit from poverty. The Maryland Stadium Authority uses Next Day Staffing as a cleaning subcontractor at Camden Yards.

Next Day violates the rights of workers at Camden Yards by:

- illegally charging transportation fees
- illegally refusing to pay for wait times
- illegally paying below the minimum wage.
- threatening workers who demand better conditions.

It's time for living wages. That's why we've given the Stadium Authority a Sept. 1 deadline for a binding living wages agreement. The more pressure we apply now, the better our chances of a living wage by Sept. 1, 2007. Join us as we demand living wages and work towards reaching this important deadline.
